Lord Sugar Moves His New Embraer Legacy 650 to Air Charter Scotland

Air Charter Scotland has taken delivery of Lord Sugar's new Embraer Legacy 650 aircraft registration G-SUGA. The $30,000,000 business jet with a range of over 4,000 NM will now be fully available for charter from its new base at London Luton Airport.

Derek Thomson, Operations Director of Air Charter Scotland said, "We are very excited to have this brand new Legacy 650 available for immediate ad-hoc charter. We already have a Legacy 600 but we strongly believe that the new Legacy 650's longer range, extra payload and amazing cabin design will be attractive for the charter market."

Air Charter Scotland has a 24 hour - 365 day a year operation and regularly operates charters to the United States as an approved Visa Waiver Scheme operator as well as charters to the Middle East and Asia under a Worldwide Air Operators Certificate. "We feel that the 650 now enables us to offer our clients a brand new aircraft with extra range to serve regions that most aircraft can struggle with at a price point whereby we continue to offer charterers the very best quality of service and value" said Derek Thomson

Lord Sugar said, "Air Charter Scotland have historically delivered a consistent level of fine service and value to it's client base and we are pleased to have our new Legacy 650 on their fleet and are confident that the charter market will appreciate this wonderful aircraft"
